

Spaceship Titanic

Alpha Centauri Disaster Briefing

What Happened?

While rounding Alpha Centauri en route to its first destination – the torrid 55 Cancri E – the Spaceship Titanic collided with a spacetime anomaly hidden within a dust cloud. Though the ship stayed intact, almost half of the passengers were transported to an alternate dimension.

When the collision occurred, the ship's computer system was damaged and lost about 4,300 records of passenger data.

What Are We Doing to Resolve This?

Our goal is to find the transported status of these passengers.

We used machine learning models to predict the passengers that were transported. From the damaged computer system in the ship, we recovered the data of about 13,000 passengers. To make a smart prediction, we took 8,700 passenger data and trained the model with it, then we verified the results with the remaining 4,300 passenger data that contains the missing vital information we need to find.

What Factors Are Being Considered for the Predictions?

- Where the passenger originated from
- If the passenger was put into cryo sleep
- The cabin that the passenger was staying in
- The destination that the passenger is going to
- The age of the passenger
- Whether the passenger has VIP status
- Luxury Amenities spent in the ship

How Accurate are our Predictions?

With our model we can provide the following:

- Accuracy: Our highest performing model achieved an accuracy score of 79%
- AUC-ROC Score: This measures how well the model tells the difference between two groups (e.g. 'Yes' vs 'No'). A higher score indicates the model is less likely to be "confused". Our model proved to be the most confident at an 89% AUC-ROC score.
- Cross-Validation: Testing the model multiple times to determine the consistency of its results. Our model passed the test with the highest consistency of 89.3%

Our Predictions

Of the 4277 passengers on board, 2014 were not transported to another dimension, while 2263 were.

The following pages lists all the passenger names of those that were transported. We will make the effort to return these passengers back home.
